StudentAtlas Use Case Diagram

Proposed UML use case diagram

Overview

This use case diagram shows how students and other actors interact with StudentAtlas. Our goal is to help college students manage their job and internship applications in one place. The system includes four main features: Job Search Resources, Application Tracker, Document Hub, and Career Hub.

Actors

Student: The main user of StudentAtlas. Students can search for job opportunities, save applications, update application statuses, manage documents, and view career information.

External Job Website: Represents platforms such as LinkedIn, Indeed, and Handshake that students can access through StudentAtlas.

Career Content Curator (Proposed): A role responsible for maintaining career-related resources, such as industry news, recruiter posts, and event information.

Use Case Descriptions

1. Browse Job Search Resources

Students can access different job search resources, such as LinkedIn, Indeed, and Handshake, to find internships and job opportunities.

2. Save Job Opportunity
Students can save jobs or internships they are interested in so they can easily find them later.

3. Add Application
Students can add a job or internship application by entering information such as the company name, position, application date, and deadline.

4. Update Application Status
Students can update their applications as they move through different stages, such as Applied, Under Review, Interview, Offer, or Rejected.

5. View Deadlines and Interviews
Students can view upcoming application deadlines and interview dates in one place.

6. Open External Job Website
Students can access external job search platforms through links provided by StudentAtlas.

7. Upload and Organize Documents
Students can upload and organize resumes, cover letters, portfolios, and other important documents in the Document Hub.

8. Select Stored Document
Students can choose a document they previously saved when preparing or updating an application.

9. Link Document to Application
Students can connect a saved resume or cover letter to a specific job application so they can remember which documents they used.

10. View Career News and Events
Students can browse career-related news, recruiter posts, networking events, and other opportunities.

Use Case Relationships

The diagram includes an «include» relationship between Link Document to Application and Select Stored Document.

This means that when students want to link a document to a job application, they first need to select a document from their Document Hub.

The Application Tracker also works closely with Job Search Resources and Document Hub. Students can find opportunities, save them in their tracker, and connect the documents they used for each application.
